Scenes & Dance Styles

This production integrates multiple dance styles, each used to enhance storytelling:

- Tap – A rhythmic and percussive dance style where dancers use metal plates on their shoes to create intricate sounds and beats. Tap is used to emphasize lively and energetic moments in the factory.
- Hip Hop – A high-energy, expressive dance form that includes elements such as popping, locking, and breaking. This style is used to showcase Mike TV’s obsession with technology and adds excitement to the performance.
- Pointe Work – A classical ballet technique where dancers wear special shoes that allow them to dance on the tips of their toes. This style emphasizes grace and precision, adding elegance to the production.

- Jazz Dance – A dynamic and theatrical dance form known for its strong, sharp movements, leaps, and expressive storytelling. Jazz helps convey the bold personalities of the characters and the whimsical nature of Wonka’s world.

Scenes to Watch For!

1. SCENE 1A & 1B – “Pure Imagination” & “Wonka Welcome Song” – Establishing Wonka’s fantastical world.

Discussion Topics & Activities

Before the Show:

- How do you think dance can be used to tell a story without words?
- What aspects of the original Charlie and the Chocolate Factory story do you think will translate best into movement and visuals?

After the Show:

- How did different dance styles contribute to the mood of each scene?
- Which character’s dance style best represented their personality? Why?
- What role do theatrical effects (such as video projections) play in bringing the story to life?

Extended Activities:

- Character Movement Study: Choose a character and create a movement sequence that represents their personality and journey.

- Sound and Rhythm Challenge: Use tap/stomp or body percussion to recreate the rhythms of the Oompa Loompa dance.
- Visual Design Exploration: Design a backdrop or costume inspired by a scene from the production.
